Beyond The Institution

Supporting Family-Based Care in Kenya

In Kenya, about 46,000 children are living in institutional care. Children are placed in orphanages for many reasons, but Kenya's government is working to transform the system. Instead of letting children grow up in orphanages, they are working to help ensure children are placed into families.

Our partnership with Child in Family Focus – Kenya gives us a front-row seat to the joy of this reform. Through donations, we support social workers, therapists, and caregivers who help make reunification possible. In April, one home facilitated reunions for eight children through relentless casework, heartfelt counseling, legal support, and compassionate home visits.

The journey from an institution to a family is not just a transition; it's a restoration of identity, love, and home. True care goes beyond shelter. It rebuilds the foundation of a child's well-being. The recent reunifications have also sparked hope among the children still at the orphanage. They know that going home is a real possibility and that they, too, belong somewhere beyond the walls of the institution.

More Than Just A Shopping Trip

A New Adventure for Mama Jael's Home

For the first time in their lives, seven children from Mama Jael's home in Uganda got to experience the joy of choosing their very own clothes. Before, their wardrobes were largely made up of gifts or hand-me-downs, so they didn't have much of a chance to express their individuality. But because of donors' support, this home was able to afford a shopping trip for new clothes.

When the day came, the children eagerly ran from the van, exploring the shopping mall with wide eyes and excitement. After a successful day, each child went home with clothing for church, play, and cozy days at home. They took turns showing off their new outfits and admiring themselves in the mirror. Mama Jael watched with a full heart, knowing this little outing had brought so much joy and confidence to the children. For them, it wasn't just about the clothes—it was about feeling loved, special, and part of something bigger.

Bethel's Dental Clinic

Keeping Children Thriving in all Areas

If you've ever had trouble getting one child to brush their teeth, imagine how much work it takes to get 39 children to maintain good dental hygiene—without regular trips to the dentist. That was the task of the 13 caregivers at Bethel Homes in Zambia. Through the Thrive tools, they recognized how crucial oral hygiene is for children's overall health and development. Marcie, the home manager, led the initiative to host a dental clinic. But since it would be the children's first real assessment in the home, everyone was nervous.

It was both reassuring and uplifting to learn that the majority of the children had good oral hygiene. This outcome not only brought relief but also served as a source of encouragement and motivation for the caregivers, reinforcing the importance of their dedication and diligence. Marcie was delighted with the results and remains committed to addressing identified concerns. It was incredibly encouraging to witness the dedication of the caregivers reflected in the excellent results of the dental exams.

Bringing Children Home

Shelter Yetu Strengthens Families

After facing neglect at home, 15-year-old Musa and 13-year-old Caleb are brothers who ended up living on the streets. Their mother, who struggled with alcoholism, was often away and unable to care for them. With no support from their father—whose whereabouts are unknown—the boys began collecting scrap metal and relying on strangers to survive.

Shelter Yetu's street outreach team met the brothers in July 2024 and brought them in. Reintegrating the boys with family was difficult at first, but eventually, the home located their grandmother. She warmly welcomed the opportunity to care for them, and social workers conducted several visits to ensure her home would be a safe and nurturing environment. In May, the boys spent a short home visit with her, giving them time to reconnect and build trust.

Since that visit, Musa and Caleb prepared for full reintegration in June. Their grandmother is committed to raising them, but she also faces some health challenges and is currently unemployed. To help care for the boys' sustainability, Shelter Yetu's Family Strengthening team is supporting the boys' grandmother with an economic empowerment program. Now, with renewed family bonds, community support, and a focus on long-term stability, Musa and Caleb are on the path to a brighter future.

Thank You for Elevating Care with Us!

What an incredible quarter—thanks to you! Your generosity has had a direct and meaningful impact on the lives of orphaned and vulnerable children, and I couldn't be more grateful. The stories in this report are just a small glimpse of the impact for thousands of children right now. With you, we're elevating how the whole world cares for orphaned and vulnerable children.

It was such a joy to spend time with our supporters at our Hope Fiesta and golf tournament. Connecting with you in person is always a highlight for our team, and being able to do that twice in one quarter was truly special! As we head into the second half of the year, we're putting our hearts into the work ahead—especially as we prepare for our largest fundraising event of the year, the Give HOPE Gala. I sincerely hope to see you there!
